Hey Reddit community,

Recognizing the potential of NFT avatars as educational tools, I wanted to say that The Turing Trust has started accepting donations of Reddit moons, r/FortNite bricks, and avatars to support their mission of providing computers and technological training to students around the world.

We want to thank the Reddit communities of r/cryptocurrency, r/avatartrading, and r/brickmoon for their support. To show our appreciation, we have provided a few NFT avatars for the purpose of adding a giveaway to this announcement.

We believe that NFT avatars and other digital assets can be powerful educational tools, and we are excited to see how they will be used to teach important lessons about digital property and security in the years to come.

Thank you for your support, and we look forward to continuing our work together.
